

Britain loses a war with its 13 colonies. The colonies become the United States of America.

The British get their forts back.

The French lose the war with Britain. Michigan comes under the control of the British.

The area of Michigan becomes part of this new country called the United States of America.

American Indians under the leadership of Chief Pontiac fight back against the British. They take over several British forts.

War breaks out between the French and the British over the fur trade.